SECTION 1 CONFLICT OF INTEREST MANAGEMENT POLICY

1. Purpose of the policy

The General Code of Conduct for Financial Services Providers requires Financial Services Providers and their representatives to disclose to their clients the existence of actual or potential Conflict of Interest.

The purpose of this regulation is to ensure that there is no Conflict of Interest when advice is provided to clients. A Conflict of Interest will exist when anything may influence the objectivity of the advisor, and his/her ability to provide appropriate advice, in the best interest of the client and for the right reasons.

This policy serves to clarify what constitutes a Conflict of Interest, as well as measures taken to avoid or mitigate such Conflict of Interest. Furthermore, it will provide a list of which direct and indirect benefits need to be disclosed to clients as well as methods to disclose it. Disclosure of direct and indirect benefits needs to be made in a consistent and transparent manner. Financial Services Providers have to avoid vague and inadequate disclosures.

The aim of an efficient Conflict of Interest Management Policy is to ensure that there is no unfair treatment of clients or rendering of inappropriate financial services by Financial Services Providers.

2. Definition of Conflict of Interest

A Conflict of Interest involves the Conflicted person to perform his duties, sell his skills or act in any manner where he does so for own benefit (interest) and to the actual or potential detriment of his employer, client or any other person. Examples are competing with your employer or selling a specific product because there is a hidden benefit for the seller, such as a kickback or undisclosed commission.

A Conflict of Interest in the financial services industry is a situation in which financial or other personal considerations have the potential to compromise advice given or influence professional judgment and objectivity. An apparent Conflict of Interest is one in which a reasonable person would think that the professional's judgment is likely to be compromised. A potential Conflict of Interest involves a situation that may develop into an actual Conflict of Interest. It is important to note that a Conflict of Interest exists whether or not decisions are affected by a personal interest.

The actual or potential existence of a Conflict of Interest may in itself not be an undesirable practice. It is imperative to properly disclose the nature and monetary value of such Conflict to a client.

Such disclosure should be made prior to rendering of financial services and then confirmed in the record of advice, and should also be recorded in a register. Full disclosure allows a potential client to decide whether, in the client's view, a Conflict situation may influence advice provided. The client will therefore be better equipped to assess whether the advice given may be flawed or influenced unduly.

The General Code of the FAIS Act defines Conflict of Interest as follows in Sec 1:

Any situation in which a Financial Services Provider or a representative has an actual or potential interest that may, in rendering a financial service to a client, -

- (a) influence the objective performance of his, her or its obligations to that client; or
- (b) prevent a Financial Services Provider or representative from rendering an unbiased and fair financial service to that client, or from acting in the interests of that client, including, but not limited to –

- (i) a financial interest;
 - (ii) an ownership interest;
 - (iii) any relationship with a third party.

3. Definitions of concepts as contained in the General Code of Conduct

The FSB has issued BN 58 of 2010 to eradicate any misconceptions as to what constitutes Conflict of Interest and the manner of disclosure thereof.

5. Management statement on Conflict of Interest

The management of Libra Corporate Benefits herewith accepts the company's responsibilities conferred by the FAIS Act and Code as well as its general obligation to transact with clients, potential clients and the public in general in an open and transparent manner.

In order to protect the interests of clients, the Conflict of Interest Management Policy sets out to achieve:

- the identification of circumstances which may give rise to actual or potential Conflict of Interest entailing material risk of damage to client interests;
- to establish appropriate structures and systems to manage any such Conflicts; and
- to maintain systems in an effort to prevent damage to the interests of our clients through identified Conflict of Interest.

Libra Corporate Benefits strives towards ensuring it is able to appropriately and effectively identify and manage potential conflicts. It may manage potential conflicts through avoidance, establishing confidentiality barriers and by providing appropriate disclosure of the conflict to affected clients.

6. Application of the definition of Conflict of Interest

In determining whether there is or may be a Conflict of Interest to which the policy applies, Libra Corporate Benefits considers whether there is a material risk of damage to the client, taking into account whether the FSP, its representative, associate or employee –

- is likely to make a financial gain, or avoid a financial loss, at the expense of the client;
- has an interest in the outcome of a service provided to the client or of a transaction carried out on behalf of the client, which is distinct from the client's interest in that outcome;
- has a financial or other incentive to favour the interest of another client, group of clients or any other third party over the interests of the client;
- receives or will receive from a person other than the client, an inducement in relation to a service provided to the client in the form of monies, goods or services, other than the legislated commission or reasonable fee for that service.

The policy defines possible Conflict of Interest as, amongst others:

- Conflict of Interest between Libra Corporate Benefits and the client;
- Conflict of Interest between our clients if we are acting for different clients and the different interests Conflict materially;

- Conflict of Interest where associates, product suppliers, distribution channels or any other third party is involved in the rendering of a financial service to a client;
- Holding confidential information on clients which, if we would disclose or use, would affect the advice or services provided to clients.

7. Dealing with Conflict of Interest under the General Code of Conduct of 2003

These aspects are mostly dealt with in the disclosure notices of Financial Services Providers, the commission disclosures made in quotes and schedules of insurance as well as in the compliance policy of the Financial Services Provider. Although these aspects are prescribed in general terms the onus is still on the Financial Services Provider to decide whether any activity constitutes a Conflict of Interest and how to disclose it.

9. Control measures

The following measures were adopted to manage identified Conflicts. These measures are necessary in dealing with any potential Conflict of Interest to ensure that Libra Corporate Benefits and its representatives act impartially and avoid a material risk of harming any clients' interests.

- Internal processes:

This Policy sets out the procedures to manage and control any potential Conflict of Interest. Representatives, associates and employees receive guidance and training in these procedures and they are subject to monitoring and review processes. There are specific measures and consequences in place for non-compliance with the Conflict of Interest policy.

- Confidentiality barriers:

Representatives, associates and employees respect the confidentiality of client information. No such information may be disclosed to a third party without the written consent of a client.

- Monitoring:

The key individual in charge of supervision and monitoring of this policy will regularly provide feedback on all related matters. The policy will be reviewed annually.

- Disclosure:

Where there is no other way of managing a Conflict, or where the measures in place do not sufficiently protect clients' interests, the Conflict must be disclosed to allow clients to make an informed decision on whether to continue using our service in the situation concerned. Where applicable, the monetary value of non-cash inducements will be disclosed to clients in all cases.

- Publication:

The Conflict of Interest management policy is available for inspection at the office of the Financial Services Provider and is also referred to in the disclosure notice.

- Report:

The Conflict of Interest Management Policy is reported on in the annual report submitted to the FSB.

- Declining to act:

We will decline to act for a client if we believe that a Conflict of Interest cannot be avoided.

- Identification of Conflict of Interest:

Employees, representatives and associates will receive training and educational material in order to be able to identify potential and actual Conflict of Interest.

- Avoidance of Conflict of Interest:

This is achieved by:

- ensuring that all employees, representatives and associates have an understanding and adopt the Conflict of Interest policy and control measures;
- conducting regular inspections on all commissions, remuneration, fees and financial interests proposed or received in order to avoid non-compliance;
- keeping a register of Conflict of Interest.

10. Internal Conflict of Interest

Internal Conflict of Interest includes any situation where an employee, member or officer of the company is placed in a situation where he or she competes with the company.

Examples are where he or she may gain or benefit from a situation at the expense of the company or where an interest in a contract is not disclosed or the employee has an interest in a company that competes with the company or the employee has an interest in a contract between the company and a supplier.

A person may also be in a position where he or she may take or influence a decision to his or her advantage, such as obtaining a loan from the company or award a contract. The company requires good faith from its employees and officers and any actual or potential Conflict should be disclosed.

11. Receipt of gifts

In order to eradicate any grey areas relating to the receipt of gifts, the company has adopted a policy setting a threshold amount over which all gifts received in the line of duty have to be reported and recorded in a register. Gifts include money, sponsorships, goods, tickets to events, free or partly-paid holidays, rebates, etc. All gifts, irrespective of the value thereof should be reported. Records are kept in a register that is retained by the responsible person. This reporting duty extends to all gifts offered in the line of duty, even if the employee declines such a gift. Gifts that are given at festive times may for instance be innocent, but other gifts from suppliers or prospective suppliers should be viewed with caution.

The company may investigate any gift reported in order to ascertain from a risk perspective, whether there was any basis for providing an employee or officer of the company with such a gift, taking into account whether the recipient of the gift is in a position to do something or cause something not to be done or to influence a decision or grant a contract or purchase something. The guideline used is therefore whether there is some form of giving something in return for something else, irrespective of whether there is a time gap between the two events and also whether the relative values of the gift and the benefit differs significantly. It is expected of all employees to take these guidelines into account when any gift is offered.

All gifts given and received must be entered into the relevant registers.

12. Consequences of non-compliance

Any person that fails to adhere to the policy will be subject to disciplinary action. If found guilty on any contravention of the Conflict of Interest requirements, an employee will be dismissed and if he or she is a representative, debarment procedures will be instituted and the FSB informed thereof.
